Dear Lionel,

I am enclosing the terms of reference for a broad assessment I have called for on where and how economic vulnerabilities and elements of potential economic leverage can be found in the increasingly interdependent global economy. I'd appreciate any suggestions you have on how it might be sharpened, broadened or more advantageously focused.

Also enclosed is a speech I prepared for an international economic conference in Dallas, which was not delivered because I could not make it. It indicates some of my own thinking in this area.

Yours,
